Rev. Richeson Stabs Himself With Jagged Tin in Boston Jail.

HIS RECOVERY IS IN DOUBT

Accused Murderer of Avis Dinnell Found Bleeding in His Cell Early This Morning—Efforts at Secrecy by the Authorities Failed.

United Press Telegram.
BOSTON, Dec. 20.—The Rev. Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson, former pastor of the ultra fashionable Emmanuel Baptist church in Cambridge, held charged with the murder of pretty Avis Dinnell, attempted suicide at 2:30 this morning. He may die.

He stabbed himself in the groin with a piece of tin just as his guards were changing. He was rushed to the prison hospital in a critical condition. "There is no escape from becoming but suicide," once declared Daniel Webster in a famous murder trial, "and suicide is confession."

Richeson is not known to have confessed. Many believe his attempt at suicide was impelled by a conscience which gave him no rest. Efforts were made to prevent the news of the attempted suicide from becoming known. Richeson was found in his cell in a pool of blood with a jagged tin in his chest.

The story leaked out late in the morning when a short term prisoner who had seen the wounded man on his way to the hospital went to a newspaper office and told the information. Later it was denied by a prison official but even as they were denying it there came flaring through the prison corridors Richeson's wild yell, "My God, I'm dying," he shrieked again and again.

It was only then that the officials would confirm the story. Medical examiners for the county and a number of physicians were called in to attend to Richeson's injuries. They declared the wound would not have been inflicted by a normal minded man.

The wound is of such a nature as to cause Richeson's condition to be critical. Most physicians say it will take several days to heal. It is believed that Richeson's mind is now in a state of confusion. How Richeson secured the pieces of jagged tin may never be known but it is believed he picked them up secretly while taking exercise in the "bull pen."

The night guards and those for the early morning hours are changed at 2:30 A. M. The night guards paid little attention to Richeson because he has been an ideal prisoner. The relief guards heard means coming from his cell.

"What have you done?" demanded the warden.

At five o'clock the physicians stated that barring possible complications there is little doubt but that the man will recover. The weapon with which the wound was inflicted had been prepared with cunning. The piece of tin was secured to a sharp edge on the cement floor of the cell. It evidently took several days to accomplish this.

District Attorney Fletcher said that Richeson's trial would probably start January 15, an originally scheduled. Philip H. Dunbar and William A. Forrest, attorneys for Richeson, were notified of the affair and immediately sent word to John L. Lee, the Lynchburg, Va., lawyer in charge of the defense. Neither of the attorneys here would make a statement.

EXTRA EXPRESS TRAIN OVER SOUTHWEST BRANCH THIS WEEK

Christmas Shipments Being Taken Care of on Pennsylvania by Special Service.

The extra holiday express business along the Southwest branch of the Pennsylvania railroad is being taken care of this week by a special train composed of express cars only. The train is handling much of the express business for the week, in addition to the Connellsville and Uniontown shipments.

The train goes south through here about 8:30 each morning and returns about 10 o'clock. The northbound trip is not particularly heavy but the cars are well filled coming south each morning. The Adams Express Company is getting sufficient business for Connellsville, Uniontown, Scottdale and intermediate points to warrant operating the special as it would have been impossible to take care of the traffic under the regular schedule.

ASKS WARRANT FOR MAYOR; MISUSE OF FUNDS CHARGED

Court Has Information Under Consideration and May Reach a Decision Today.

BUFFALO, Dec. 20.—That Mayor Louis F. Fuhrmann made use of $5,000 of the city's money in the purchase of a new automobile for his private use, which was charged to the city, was the charge of the Supreme Court today. The information was first laid before Justice Wheeler a week ago and today a second request was made. The Justice informed Fuhrmann that he still has the matter under advisement. It is not unlikely that a decision will be reached late today.

TOM BAXTER NOT PROPRIETOR; ONLY PLAYER AT RAIDED GAME

Records Show That First Information Given Out Was Inaccurate and That He Paid But $5 Forfeit.

Tom Baxter, the hotel and restaurant man, has just justice over the published accounts of the recent raid on a North Pittsburgh street poker room. The first reports given out were that Baxter was one of the three hotel proprietors of the room. That the police records prove is not correct. Baxter paid but $5 forfeit as one of those present in the room when the police raided it. He was not arrested as one of the three men who put up $10 each as proprietors, as was first intimated by those participating in the raid.

Baxter said this morning: "I am in the North Pittsburgh street room when it was raided as was I in it. I am not a proprietor, as was first intimated. I had no more to do with the room than they did. The men who ran it will corroborate me in this. So will the officers who raided it. It is only fair that I be set right."

DRIVING HORSE INJURED.

M. J. Roland's Animal Ran Splinter in Leg in Stall.

M. J. Roland's fine driving horse met with an accident a few days ago which it is feared may prove fatal. The animal is of a very frisky nature and the supposition is that it was making an effort to climb up on the manger when it met with the injury. A piece of wood which projects from the stall penetrated the fleshy part of one of its front legs, and as a result the animal is suffering from an ugly cut. The best of attention is being given the horse and every possible effort is being made to save the animal's life.

DIRECTORS MEET

In Their Annual Convention at Uniontown Today.

The annual meeting of the Fayette County School Directors Association convened this morning in the Municipal building, Uniontown, with directors present from all over the county. The meeting opened at 9 o'clock. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Charles R. Harmon. Reports of the delegates to the State convention were given by David E. Bane, and by Rev. J. P. Young, who spoke on School Grounds and Buildings. A general discussion followed. Dr. J. H. Huxford of Vanderhill spoke on Books, Furniture and School Supplies. The meeting adjourned at 12 o'clock. There will be special guests at the institute occupying seats on the stage at the Grand Opera House. This evening and tomorrow evening they will be admitted to the evening entertainment. Chairs will be arranged on the stage for them. Dr. R. T. Gribble is president of the association.

The Teachers' Institute is in full swing and all teachers present are taking a great interest in the different sessions. This morning's session was opened by Rev. J. B. Risk, pastor of the Uniontown Methodist Episcopal church. A vocal solo was rendered by Dr. C. C. Ellis and a music drill was conducted by Harry Maxwell. Dr. Robert A. Armstrong spoke on "The Best Seller." The speakers for this afternoon are Dr. H. B. Davis and John J. Gunkel. The evening session will be opened by Rev. J. B. Risk. Dr. Robert A. Armstrong will lecture on "Abraham Lincoln."

FALLS UNDER WHEELS; FIREMAN LOSES LIFE

Bon Stinemman Fatally Injured When He Missed Footing Last Night.

TRIED TO BOARD P. R. R. FREIGHT

Baltimore & Ohio Employee Intended Riding to Scottdale When He Fell Beneath Engine—Lost Much Blood Before Aid Came.

Bon Stinemman, an extra fireman on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was fatally injured last night along the Pennsylvanian tracks near Meadow lane when he missed his footing while attempting to board a moving freight train and had an arm and a leg run off by the wheels of the pushing engine. Stinemman lives at Scottdale and, having just come off his run, was trying to board the train and ride home.

Dr. H. J. Coll was summoned quickly. He was finally persuaded to wait until he could be taken to the hospital. Despite his injuries and loss of blood he retained consciousness. He at first declined to take a stimulant. "I don't want that stuff," he insisted. He was finally persuaded to take a stimulant. He was taken to the hospital. The body was taken to Scottdale this morning by Undertaker J. I. Murphy of that place. Stinemman was 21 years old and single.

BANNER WEEK AT SOISSON FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

Manager Robbins Succeeds in Booking "The Cowboy and the Thief" as Great Special Attraction Christmas Day.

Christmas week will be busy at the Soisson, no less than three attractions having been booked by Manager Robbins. Christmas day will be "The Cowboy and the Thief," a Great Special Attraction. On December 28 the "Rescue" will play a return engagement, being one of the most popular plays that has been booked at the Soisson during the past couple of seasons. To a return engagement last season, the "Rescue" played the house.

On December 29 comes "Madame Sherry" with a subsequent plethora of whistled airs of "Every Little Movement" with individual variations throughout.

"Madame Sherry" was the banner attraction last season and it is not at all improbable that the business this year will be equally as good.

AFFIDAVITS SENT

To South Dakota to Secure Somerset Woman a Pardon.

SOMERSET, Dec. 20.—(Special.) Clerk of the Orphans' Court Bert P. Landis today forwarded to pension attorneys at Oelrichs, South Dakota, several affidavits which Mrs. Ellenora Hurley Thymann, of that State, widow of the late George H. Thymann, of Somerset, will base her claim for a pension upon.

The procedure necessary in Mrs. Thymann's case is unusually complex as she is located so far from the source of the information required in her application for a pension. Her late husband's military record, however, is being furnished to her by Veterans Herman G. Cunningham and Solomon Lehnart, who served in the same company in the Civil War with George H. Thymann.

The affidavits were required to declare that they had known both Mr. and Mrs. Thymann prior to their marriage, and that they had not been divorced. Mrs. Thymann's maiden name was (Hurley), she having come to Somerset as a nurse in the George Chorpensing family.

Comrade Cunningham distinctly recalls of having been present at the Hurley-Thymann wedding, back in 1894, which was solemnized at Somerset in a tavern conducted by the late Daniel Flick, opposite the residence of the late George Chorpensing.

Lehnart was dictating what should be embodied in their affidavits today, they became reminiscent of war days. Thymann's military record is 15 months, only 12 of whom are still living. Three of the 15—A. H. Huston and the Messers, Cunningham and Lehnart—reside in Somerset.

CALENDAR SEASON AT HAND; BANKS PRINCIPAL DONORS

Some of Them Are Being Delivered and Others Can Be Had by Calling Around.

This is the open season for calendars. The banks, as usual, are the principal donors and considerable rivalry is manifested in the handsome sets that are being presented to their patrons. Some of the banks are delivering the calendars to their customers while others have issued cards entitling the holder to get one of the calendars by applying for it. The calendars are not limited to the banks, however. Many of the stores are participating in the dissemination of 1912 dates. The insurance agencies are not far behind, either.

Western Maryland Touring.

The shipment of 100 tons of coal over the West Virginia division of the Western Maryland railway during October amounted to 159,775 gross tons, and during November to 159,775 gross tons. The total for the two months is 319,550 tons. The Western Maryland system, for the four months from July 1st, the tonnage shipped over the West Virginia division amounted to 725,555 tons, and that over the Georges Creek & Cumberland line, 104,761 tons, a total of 830,316 tons.

DEVINE DISCHARGED.

Burgess Tells Him Continue His Trip to Greensburg Today.

James Devine, who said he was on his way to Greensburg, was arrested last night on a charge of being drunk. He faced Burgess Evans this morning and pleaded guilty.

Devine said he had sufficient money to take him to Greensburg and was discharged. He is a blacksmith by trade.

MT. Pleasant Teacher Dies.

Following an illness of several months, Miss Rachel Imbelle McGuffin, a former well known teacher in the Mt. Pleasant schools, died Monday at the home of her brother Milton McGuffin at Burgettstown. Deceased was a daughter of the late James and Martha McGuffin of Mt. Pleasant township. Funeral services were held this morning at 11 o'clock from her late home at Burgettstown.

Discharged From Hospital.

Robert Carroll of Lisenring No. 1, and Robert Rodkey of the South Side Prison were discharged from the South Side Prison hospital yesterday.

Temperature Record.

1911
Dec. 19, 8 A. M. 35
Dec. 19, 8 P. M. 35
Dec. 20, 8 A. M. 23
Dec. 20, 8 P. M. 28
The weather is keeping close step with that which prevailed at this time last year. A comparison of temperature readings shows there is little change this year over that of 1910.

The temperature this morning dropped to 23 at 8 o'clock, along with a heavy frost which fell during the night. The cold snap has caused the river to fall steadily and it is now at a foot stage.

The weather is more reasonable than it has been for weeks past and has stimulated the holiday buying to some extent. There seems to be a greater inclination to buy while the weather is reasonable, and the staple goods are in somewhat greater demand.

RETAILER BLAMED BY TARIFF BOARD

For the High Cost of Woolen Goods Under Payne Tariff.

WHAT THE FIGURES SHOW

Man's Suit Sold by Wholesaler at $16.50, Which Cost $11.32 to Manufacturer Is Sold by the Retailer at $22—The First Cost of Wool High.

United Press Special.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20.—Declaring many of the schedules in the Payne-Adams tariff to be "prohibitive," the report of the Tariff Board on wool was submitted to Congress today by the President.

The difference in cost of production at home and abroad, it is found that in nearly every woolen product from the dirty fleece up to the finished worsted cloth, it costs much more to produce wool and woolen goods in America than in any other country on earth. It costs 10 cents to raise a pound of wool in Ohio and in Australia, considerably less than 10 cents. These differences continue throughout the woolen industry. While American labor is much higher paid than in Europe, the Board finds that it is not as efficient as that in European mills. About one dollar in every four paid to the retailer of men's clothing goes to the manufacturer of the cloth. A suit consisting of 12 yards sold at wholesale by the manufacturer for $16.50. It costs him $14.32. Thus in general, the manufacturer of cloth and clothing is absorbed by the Board from the greater part of profit in the high cost of clothing, and it is attributed to the retailer.

The Board states, however, that the high duties on wool have not resulted in retail prices as high as might be expected. Competition has kept prices down. This competition was stimulated when the high duties made woolen manufacture very profitable. Then foreign capital came in and built mills. For all woolen entries, the Board recommends specific duties instead of the present method of assessing ad valorem rates. The ad valorem system makes duties high when prices are high and the consumer must needs pay more. The producer is best able to bear competition. When prices are low and the consumer has need of foreign competition, then under the ad valorem system duties are low and the foreign competition comes in.

The Board advocates "specific duties" as the best and easiest way to offset the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. Because of the difficulty in classifying fabrics, however, the Board recommends a combination of specific and ad valorem duty on woolen cloth, a low ad valorem rate on the goods increasing to the highest rates of expensive goods. Exactly the reverse of the policy adopted by the framers of the Payne-Adams tariff.

Reports for the Board studied wool growing in Australia, South America, South Africa, Great Britain and other European countries and in 173 countries in the United States.

The report says: "The present duty of 32 cents per pound on clean wool is prohibitive, preventing effectively the importation of clean, well-placed foreign wools of the lower grades that would be exceedingly useful in the manufacture of woolsens in this country and if so used might displace in large measure the cheap substitutes now so frequently employed in that industry."

The Payne-Adams law bases its raw wool duties on the assumption that greasy wool when cleaned shrinks an average of two thirds. This shrinkage allowance is much too high, the board says. The average shrinkage of imported wools is about 40 per cent, and of all domestic wools between 55 and 60 per cent. The rates on wool waste, rags and shoddy are called prohibitive and the report states that the present tariff practically excludes from importation all lops and yarns except the most expensive worsted yarns.

"The same is true," it says, "of low grade wool and cloth for men's wear. A considerable quantity of the fine and expensive fabrics are imported. In the year 1910, these did not constitute three per cent of the total consumption of the United States."

The report then discusses the relative merits of specific duties levied on weight and of valorem duties. Those duties are applied in combinations to "fabrics and the result is that on cheap fabrics the Payne-Adams specific duties are sometimes in excess of the total value of raw material on the basis of cost of production in the country. "Consequently," the board declares, "the nominal duty on certain cheap fabrics, which is imposed under the existing duty—is commonly as high as 100 per cent ad valorem, and in some cases even over 200 per cent. Much of the objection to the present compensatory duty as excessive would be removed by putting the duty on wool on the so-called (or cleaned) basis instead of on the greasy pound. The duty in that case would be adjusted to the actual wool."

But prices in this country have not been increased by the full amount of these prohibitive duties, the Board finds.

The Board says that goods assessed at from 150 to 200 per cent and thereby prohibited, were sold in this country at a price only 50 to 80 per cent higher than O. S. goods abroad. This is the result of domestic competition it says.

"At the present time," says the report, "the industry in general is on a competitive basis."

STEEL COMPANY HEADS

Held Meeting in New York and Price Advances Are Rumored.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The regular monthly meeting of the presidents of the United States Steel subsidiary companies was held here yesterday and brought together practically all the heads of the subordinate concerns, including the Illinois Steel Company, Carnegie Steel Company, American Sheet & Tinplate Company, H. C. Frick Coke Company and National Tube Company.

No formal statement was issued at the conclusion of the meeting. The trade outlook for the coming year came in for considerable discussion. The matter of prices was gone over with instructions that an advance on several products, including sheet steel may be announced before the end of the year.

Chairman Gary, of the parent company, did not attend the meeting of the subsidiary presidents, the proceedings of which it was declared, were almost entirely routine. Thomas L. Ryan, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company; Alva C. McKinley, president of the Carnegie Steel Company; W. C. Shilling, president of the National Tube Company, and G. J. Buttington, president of the Illinois Steel Company, were among those present at the hearing.

THE COKE MEN'S HEARING HAS NOW BEEN POSTPONED

Will Not Come Before Interstate Commerce Commission Until Some Time in January or February.

The party of independent coke operators of the Connellsville region who have been in Washington since the first of the week expecting to be called in the freight rate case of the Independent Coke Producers' Association against various railroads carrying coke, pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, returned from the city this morning.

In the party were D. W. Kennedy, Secretary of the Coke Producers' Association, L. W. Fogg, John P. Brennan, Harry Wiley, I. W. Scharf, Charles E. Lehnart, W. L. Tyson and John W. Bolshaw, of Pittsburgh.

The commission yesterday continued the hearing into the complaint of the Wisconsin Steel Company of South Chicago, against the Pennsylvania railroad and other carriers. The complaining company alleges that rates on coke from the Connellsville field to their works in South Chicago are too high and they ask for a reduction. Tariff sheets of the various carriers were discussed by both sides to the case. The hearing will continue today.

The railroads will be heard on December 27 in the case of the Pittsburgh vein operators, who complain against an 88-cent rate from the Pittsburgh field to Lake Erie ports. The operators presented their side of the case in November last, and the carriers were given 15 days in which to prepare their answer.

THE EQUIPMENT

Necessary For Western Maryland Connection Is Made Public.

Equipment requirements of the Western Maryland railway when it joins up with the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie at Connellsville, have been made public by President Hobartson. He said that specifications for these needs are being prepared, and bids for the work will soon be asked from several big manufacturing concerns.

The company wants 15 consolidation freight locomotives, 10 Pacific passenger locomotives, 2,500 freight cars of various designs and 36 passenger coaches, including mail, express and baggage cars. The total cost will be between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. It will place the Western Maryland in good shape with rolling stock and engines as the company has been carrying closely for these needs for some months.

The contracts will be awarded so that deliveries can be made in the spring and summer. President Hobartson says it is not expected that the new line will be in operation much before March 1.

Injuries Drove Fatal.

Thomas Kilgallon, aged 60, a well known resident of McKeesport, is dead from injuries sustained when he was struck by a B & O train at that place Friday last. He is survived by three brothers, Dennis and Martin of McKeesport and Lawrence of Youngstown, O., and four sisters, Mrs. James McKeesport, Mrs. Charles Kerman, Mrs. John McCarty, all of McKeesport, and Mrs. John Driscoll of Connellsville. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church of McKeesport.

WEST SIDE HILL TO BE PAVED SOMETIME

Council Lets the Contract and Will Say When the Work is to Start.

PLAN PROJECTS A DISCUSSION

Hadlet Sever Dispute May Be Settled Sometime in the Near Future. Committee to Estimate Cost—Stoner's Plans Are Almost Ready.

Council let the contract for paving the West Side hill to O'Connor & Madigan last night but when the work is to start will be decided by the Street Committee. This plan, suggested by Councilman Kooser, projected a warm discussion. Kooser's resolution was to have the work done when the weather is favorable and the hill has dried off. Councilman William McCormick argued the contractors had figured high, calculating the work would be more difficult at this time than later, and insisted that work should be started as soon as practicable. The majority members of Council figured the grading would be more expensive if started at this time of the year, but McCormick disputed this proposition. He insisted that if the work was to be held over, the contract should not be let. By a vote of eight to seven, President Millard breaking the tie, the matter was left up to the Street Committee.

The successful bidders estimated 50 cents for grading, 60 cents for curbing, 50 cents for backing stone and $1.50 per square yard for paving, any kind of brick being specified. J. J. Finner, the only other bidder, asked 50 cents for grading, 65 cents for curbing, 50 cents for backing stone, and $1.75 for paving, using Laxon brick. He also specified $50 for sewer drops, as required.

Councilman W. A. Bishop brought up the matter of the Hadlet sewer, expressing belief it should be purchased by the borough. It was explained by Councilmen Friel, Hays and others, that Hadlet was too indefinite regarding his ideas as to the value of the sewer. Council voted to have the Borough Engineer estimate the value of the sewer and find out its original cost from other sources. The resolution passed. Miss Barry is a member of the class. A large number of invitations are out and the affair promises to be one of the most enjoyable social functions of the holiday season.

Club Meetings Postponed.
Practically all the club meetings which were scheduled to meet this week have been postponed until after the holidays. There will be no more meetings of the Woman's Club until Monday afternoon, January 8. The program will consist of musical numbers. Miss Pearl Keck will be hostess.

Will Wed This Evening.
The marriage of Miss Charlotte M. Deitch, former head nurse at the Uniontown hospital, and Dr. Lewis Sexton of Gray's Landing will be solemnized this evening at the home of the bride-elect in Chambersburg. After a short wedding trip Dr. Sexton and his bride will return to Gray's Landing where they will make their future home.

Dance for Teachers.
The first of a series of dances given for the teachers of Fayette county was held last evening in the Standard Club rooms, Uniontown. There were about 80 couples present. Dancing commenced at 8:30 o'clock and was kept up until 12:30. A large attendance is expected this evening when the second of the series will be given.

Entertained C. A. T. Club.
Miss Rose McArdle entertained the C. A. T. Club last evening at her home on Highland avenue. All members were present as well as several visitors. The evening was spent at fancy work and at a late hour an elaborate luncheon was served. There will be no meetings of the club until after the holidays.

S. O. Class Meeting.
The regular monthly business meeting of the S. O. Class of the First Methodist Episcopal church will be held at the home of Miss Stella Tennie, Thursday evening, December 21.

Our Patrons and Friends.
THE officers and Board of Directors of the Citizens National Bank of Conneltsville wish to extend to our depositors and friends our thanks for their patronage and loyalty during the past year and we recognize that the growth of this institution during the nine years of its history has been largely due to the confidence and esteem in which it is held by the public. On the basis of the safety and service which the depositors and patrons of this bank have enjoyed during the past year we invite new accounts and other business for the New Year. COAL AND OIL.

Of the Foxburg Region and Their Formation in Past Ages.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The area known as the Foxburg and Clanton quadrangles, in northwestern Pennsylvania, is one of the most interesting and important which has been studied by the United States Geological Survey. This area, which comprises about 150 square miles, lies in the great coal, oil and gas-producing region of western Pennsylvania, and a geologic folio (No. 178), describing its geology and mineral resources has recently been published by the Survey.

The area is drained by Allegheny and Clanton rivers. The rocks occurring in it are mostly of carboniferous age, the sediments of which they were formed having been laid down in the great period that is notable for the accumulation of huge coal beds. The layers of rock are nearly flat and are in this respect very different from those in eastern Pennsylvania, for example, which were tilted and bent and broken in the great mountain-making movement that gave rise to the Appalachian.

In the chapter on geologic history it is pointed out that long ago the area, constituting western Pennsylvania, was a part of the ocean and sediment in the water slowly settled to the bottom and later hardened into rock. Several times during the carboniferous period this area rose above sea level for a few centuries or thousands of years. During such epochs of emergence the region became a great swamp with luxuriant vegetation, and just as in such places today vegetable material does not decay completely, but accumulates in a layer many feet thick, so in carboniferous time the plant material accumulated and later, when conditions changed so that more and more land was brought into the region, this vegetable matter was buried and compressed into coal.

Since carboniferous time the region has been uplifted until it is now from 800 to 1,000 feet above sea level. The streams have washed out deep valleys and carved the old flat surface into a multitude of hills. At a time geologically very late in the earth's history a great glacier swept down from the north into northwestern Pennsylvania, bringing with it a mass of stones and dirt. The glacier did not extend as far northward as Foxburg and Clanton, but much of the debris brought by the ice was swept farther south by the Allegheny river, which was at that time flowing about 200 feet above its present channel. This material may be seen now high up on the valley sides in the form of great gravel deposits. Many of the stones having come from Canada, are very different from those which are native in western Pennsylvania.

The most important mineral resources of this area are coal, oil and gas. Millions of dollars' worth of these products have been already taken out, and millions of dollars' worth still await the miner and driller. There are many beds of coal, all of which outcrop extensively, and in addition to a score or more of large mines there are numerous small mines or "country hauls" where the coal is sold at 1 to 5 cents a bushel. The oil and gas are found in several different layers of porous sandstone, lying from 600 to 2,500 feet below the surface. The district has been well prospected for oil and gas, but there are, no doubt, some valuable pools which have not yet been tapped. Some of the wells have produced as much as 2,000 barrels of oil and some 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day, but at present the daily output of most of the wells is only a few barrels.

The Foxburg-Clanton folio can be obtained from the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., at a cost of 25 cents.

The Machineist's Ball.
The annual ball of Fayette Lodge International Association of Machineists held last evening in the West Side Auditorium was a great success. Music was furnished by Killeen's orchestra and dancing was kept up until after midnight. A number of out of town guests were present.

CHRISTMAS.

A Suggestion For Those Who Haven't Quite Decided What to Give.

The greatest Christmas festival in the world will soon be celebrated and folks of all ages will be made happy by giving and receiving. If you—Uncle Jack, Aunt Mary or Cousin Charlie, can't make up your mind just what to give your nieces and nephews and younger cousins, may we suggest a savings account, which you can open for any child you wish to remember with The First National Bank of Conneltsville, with $1, is a nice gift. It will teach the children to have their very own bank accounts. It will teach them, too, to be saving—something every one should learn early in life, for thrift means prosperity. The First National pays 4% on all Savings Accounts.

BAD BREATH.

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove It. A Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, will positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath and quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities.

They do all that dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. P. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Try Olive Tablets today. Take one every night for a week and note the effect.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

WEDNESDAY EVE'G., DEC. 20, 1911.

The Abrogation of the Russian Treaty.
President Taft on his own motion has abrogated the Russian Treaty for the very excellent and entirely sound reason that Russia has not of late been observing its plain terms and positive conditions. While it may seem to some that the action of the Democratic House and the Republican President were dictated or in some measure influenced by political considerations, the opening article of the Russian Treaty makes any other course on the part of the United States authorities, executive or legislative, impossible. Article I of the Treaty of 1832 says:

There shall be between the territories of the high contracting parties, a reciprocal liberty of commerce and navigation. The inhabitants of their respective States shall mutually have liberty to enter the ports, places and rivers of the territories of each party, wherever foreign commerce is permitted. They shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of said territories in order to attend to their affairs and they shall enjoy, to that effect the same security and protection as natives of the country wherein they reside, on condition of their submitting to the laws and ordinances there prevailing and particularly to the regulations in force concerning commerce.

In the face of this signed and sealed treaty Russia has in recent years spat upon, spurned and shamelessly repudiated this solemn compact. We have respected its terms but Russia has not only neglected them so far as our Jewish citizens are concerned, but the Russian authorities have actually rejected, scorned and scoffed them.

In view of these circumstances there was nothing else to do but take the action that has been taken. American honor is slow to anger, but it is never safe to push it too hard. The American flag covers and protects all of our citizens, wherever they may be and whatever their blood may have been or is at fully and as completely as it covered the boys at Bunker Hill and Brandvins and the blood-stained veterans at Yorktown and Appomattox.

There should not be there cannot be any difference. American citizen ship does not draw any invidious distinctions.

Startling But Not Truthful.
Startling it true, says the Uniontown Herald, and startling it would be if it were true and true it is that it was printed in the columns of this paper and true it came from a reputable news agency regularly employed to serve the Courier, but true it is that there is no truth in it whatever and true it is that this will be a bad blow to the Uniontown Untruthfuler.

The United Press Association sent out yesterday a story to the effect that the hearing in the Conneltsville coke rate case before the Interstate Commerce Commission developed the fact that there was a phony conspiracy between the United States Steel Corporation and the railroads to 'ruin the independent coke operators of the Conneltsville region'.

The representative of the Conneltsville Coke Producers Association arrived here this morning. They report that no such conspiracy has developed, that as a matter of fact no evidence was offered, because as a matter of fact the Conneltsville coke rate case was postponed until after the holidays. In the meantime the Uniontown Herald has been busy with its little hands with glee and shouts its joyous treble, insistent and hurrying just like the telegraphic service which we are just now cursing and which we are just now cursing.

Fair tales are incident to Christmas, but this phony conspiracy is about the blindest fact that ever came down the broad Pike of Romance, and perhaps that is the reason it is so pleasing to Uniontown Journalism.

The law regulating coal mining in the coal producing State of Pennsylvania should be made with the advice and consent of the coal producing interests, that is to say the coal operator and the coal operative.

The Uniontown Herald Bill is both startling and untrue. It has achieved a proud distinction, not to mention a little water circulation. It is truly great in everything but the fact that it was established. It has defeated more men for office than it has ever elected. As a political investment it has been a dismal failure. Imported talent is usually too conceited to be of any value. It isn't willing to learn. It consequently knows but little and serves its interests less. The Herald is a striking example. It has put both itself and its friends out of politics. Its history furnishes fresh proof of the truth of the ancient maxim: "Those who take up the sword shall perish by the sword."

The Tariff Board's report on the Wool Schedule ought to satisfy the most radical Trade Democrat. If the Tariff Board is continued, its subsequent reports will be awaited with interest and perhaps with apprehension.

WANTED—AN ISSUE. SUBMIT SAMPLES. Address: POKEL, c/o Uniontown Herald, Uniontown, on the Pike. No Mud Island Suckers need apply.

The Monongahela Valley ships its varied products by water as well as by rail. Water transportation may be slow, but it's cheap.

A few months ago the Uniontown Herald could not contain the United States Steel Corporation ten billion. SAY AGE LIMIT OF BOYS IS HIGH

Mining Institute Hears Discussion of Problems of the Producers.

THEY WANT NEW LEGISLATION

There is too Long a Period Between 14 Years When Boys Some Times Finish School and 16 When They Can Work in the Pit.

The winter meeting of the Coal Mining Institute of America opened Tuesday morning in the assembly room of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, in the Oliver building, Pittsburgh, with about 100 coal mine operators, mining engineers and mine inspectors present. The first business of the day was the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The result of the balloting was as follows: President, A. A. Callaway,
General Superintendent of the Rochester
Pittsburgh Coal & Iron Company,
Pittsburgh, Pa.; First Vice President, Jesse K. Johnston, Charleston; Second Vice President, W. E. Fohl, mining engineer, Pittsburgh; Third Vice President, Elias Phillips, State Mine
Inspector, Dubois, Pa.; Secretary-
Treasurer, Charles L. Fay, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Board members, J. J.
Sourfield, Little, Pa.; Nicholas Evans,
Pittsburgh, Pa.; S. A. Taylor,
Pittsburgh, Pa.; Austin King, Scotland.

The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of various questions of interest to mine operators. A discussion of the new mining code, which, among other things, decrees that no boy shall enter the mines until he is 16 years old, took up most of this session.
Spirited addresses against the act were made by State Mine Inspector Elias Phillips, Secretary C. L. Fay, R. J.
Hall, F. W. Cunningham and S. A.
Taylor.

The chief argument against the act which prevents boys from securing employment in the mines until they are 16 years old, was that in other industries boys can go to work when they have attained the age of 14 years.
The mine operators think that such seeming discrimination against the mining industry, should be removed.

Mr. Fay, in the course of his remarks, stated that this provision of the code put a premium on dishonesty as the children, acting under orders from their parents, would be regarding their exact age. Another argument used was that children may finish their schooling when they are 14 years old and then have to wait until they are 16 before they can go to work and help support their families.
It was claimed by one of the speakers that during these two years of idleness the boys of the mining villages retrograde morally and are continually getting into mischief.

Mine Inspector Cunningham's argument for an amendment to this provision was that the boys of the mining villages are prevented from entering the mines when they are through schooling and naturally drift into some other industry and seldom return to the mines when of age. The sentiment among the operators was general that the act should be amended and the age limit lowered to 14 years.

Another question which precipitated an interesting discussion was "How can the number of accidents in mines from falls be reduced?" Thomas K.
Adams, who conducted the afternoon session stated that 63 per cent. of the accidents in mines were caused by falls of slate or coal and that 25 of the accidents were caused by explooding.

Mine Inspector James Foley, of Pittsburgh, answered the question by stating that the whole fault lies with the miner himself. If, in the first place, as he neglects to prop up the draw state until he has loaded all the coal.
Other mine experts contribute to the argument the general conclusion being that these accidents were due to a lack of discipline, not only on the part of the miners, but also on the part of the mine foreman and superintendents. It was suggested that where a miner disobeyed orders to properly prop the state in his room that he be suspended and if the offense is repeated, he be discharged.

A discussion of the best kind of motor for use in mines was discussed briefly.

The next question was "What type of pumping machinery is best suited to withstand the corrosive action of water?" Mr. Taylor told the mining operators of the conference that the bureau of mine of Pittsburgh after conducting tests suggested by the above question. He said that by the introduction of a small current of electricity to the pump that the effect of the acids in the mine water was neutralized. Other operators followed up the discussion by a recital of their own experiences with pumping corrosive water.

The institute met last night with the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, for a joint session at which an interesting paper on "Steam Plants," was read by O. S. Lyford, Jr.,
The paper was the joint work of Mr.
Lyford and R. W. Stuvell, both of Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Company, of New York.

The question of steam power plants was confined to steam turbine electric plants with blower type of fuel feed boilers, and went into such detail connected with the installation of such a plant. Lantern slides were used to show various plants and sections already erected.

The paper shows that the geographical location and cost of coal are not all that enter into the factor in the different of found in steam plants and that the character of the land, physical conditions of the plant site, fitness of the apparatus to meet the conditions are so important that no territorial classification of power plants can be made.

A table showing the range in first cost of the installation of a steam turbine electric generating station was given with remarks on the reasons for the difference in cost items and the tendency of present-day design.
The paper was followed by a general discussion at which some very inter-

AT THE THEATRE.

THE SOISSON.

"THE COWBOY AND THE THIEF" Main attraction "The Cowboy and the Thief" as the attraction at the Soloson theatre on Christmas matinee and night, December 25
The company and production comes direct from the big city, where it played to bigger business than any other attraction on the circuit, proving its undoubted success. It is as interesting as any drama of the west, and while dealing with the land west of the Rockies, with cowboys and bad men, it is of the better type of western plays, such as "The Squaw Man" and others of that character. It is a good wholesome play treating with characters that live a little more strenuous existence than we of the effete East.

The story deals with the love affair of a beautiful cowboy and a very pretty western girl, and the attempt to shield a brother who has eluded from the straight road and become mixed with a band of cattle thieves. Although the action of the play is brisk and there are many exciting climaxes, it is still consistent in every detail. It is a play of quick transitions from laughter to tears holding the interest from the rise of the curtain until the fall.
The scenic equipment is full and complete, and he said to be one of the best productions extant at popular prices.

"THE ROSARY"

"The Rosary" Howard & Clifford's theatrical success, which will be seen at the Soloson theatre Thursday, Dec-25 tells a story of a modern Garden of Eden in which the serpent enters in the form of a rejected suitor who wrecks the home and happiness of a married couple by playing upon the jealousy of the husband. There is delusion throughout the drama a remarkable air of purity, faith and hope from the opening scene, which pictures the happy couple about to celebrate their second marriage anniversary, and surrounded by all the creature comforts of modern civilization.

HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

During the early part of this month, the Union Supply Company stores are dressed in full holiday attire. The stores will be decorated and the Christmas goods will be displayed, and everything possible to assist our customers in their holiday shopping, will be done. The Christmas fixings will be numerous and novel in the woman's and misses' furnishing department. Nice new designs in neckwear, shirt waists, sweaters, hosiery, handkerchiefs, millinery, furs and in fact, every sort of raiment you want. Do your Christmas shopping early; there are several inducements for it. First, you have large and better lines to select from; second, you have more time; third, you get better attention. Fourth, you get the goods early, delivered to you whenever you want them.
Avoid the last hour's rush!

THE CHRISTMAS TOY DEPARTMENT.

It is not too early to talk about the Christmas toys in fact we are selling a great many now. We want to call attention to our large lines this season. This toy department is growing annually and it has reached a point now, that we consider it one of our most important departments. The goods on display in this department now, were purchased months ago, many have been made especially for us. It is a regular toyland, fairyland, curiosity shop steam engines, electric motors, fire engines, flying machines, tridons, walking horses, baking dogs, talking dolls, sleeping dolls. We haven't the time or space to enumerate the many novelties, they will all be on display early this month, and we advise that you go early to look them over and make your purchases. Take the children along. We welcome them to our stores, the displays are largely for the benefit and amusement of the children.

Meyersdale.

MEYERSDALE, Dec. 19.—Dr. C. J. Hemminger, of Rockwood, was a business visitor to this place today.

Miss Ida Dia, who is attending Wilkes College at Chambersburg, Pa., is here to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dia of Main street.

A. Edwin Burrows, Ph. D., who has been in charge of the Tabernacle revival for the past two or three weeks, will leave tomorrow to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife and family at Youngstown, O. He will return here to re-open the meetings for a two weeks' campaign, beginning Dec. 21st. A committee representing the churches of Pottsville, W. Va., was here this evening with the view of having the Tabernacle located in that city after the meetings here come to a close, and it is likely their wish will be granted.

The members of the Fire Department will entertain the citizens at their annual banquet and housewarming to be held in the social rooms of the department headquarters on January 9th, 1912. This is a delightful occasion and always well attended.

At the meeting of the Spinners' Club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Collins, North street, last evening the announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Collins, was made. The prospective bridegroom is Mr. Frank Burrows, a prominent citizen of Kansas City, Mo. The wedding will likely be solemnized early in the spring.

Rockwood.

ROCKWOOD, Dec. 19.—To the joy of Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Dotterer the stork visited their home on Broadway early this morning, leaving a bouncing baby boy.

Homer Hay, a student at the California State Normal, California, Pa., arrived home Sunday and will spend the Christmas holidays with his mother, Mrs. Hannah Hay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Maxwell, who have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Miller of Main street for several weeks, left yesterday for Curwensville, Pa., where they will visit Mr. Maxwell's parents.

Daniel Bittner of Turkeyfoot township, has been removed to the Pittsburg hospital, where he was operated on Saturday last for hernia. The last report received was that Mr. Bittner was rapidly improving.

Tonsiline Cures Smokers' Sore Throat

Habitual smokers are often troubled with inflammation of the throat. This is called smokers' sore throat, and frequently becomes so painful that food is swallowed with difficulty.

If nothing is done to prevent it, the disease may develop into cancer of the throat. Hundreds of men have had to resort to surgical operations because of it—many have died as a result of it.

If you have smokers' sore throat, don't disregard it. It may be gone tomorrow but it will surely return again and in a more serious form. It is Nature's danger signal.

TONSILINE will positively cure you and keep the throat clean and healthy, preventing the consequences of neglect.

TONSILINE is the result of years of careful study and practical work, and is made from drugs used for years in the cure of throat diseases. TONSILINE destroys the poison germs of all kinds of sore throat and cleanses away painful and poisonous ulceration. It soothes and heals the tender mouth and throat membranes and removes the cause of throat trouble.

A quick, safe, soothing, healing antiseptic cure for Sore Throat, briefly describes TONSILINE.

We know from long experience it will do all we claim for it. 25 cents and 50 cents. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

SCALP ITCHED SO SHE COULDN'T SLEEP

Nor Keep from Scratching. Became Worse and Worse. In Two Weeks Rid Completely of Trouble through Use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"One evening while combing my hair, I noticed a few brown crustlike spots on my scalp and, of course, I thought it was only the dandruff that I had been getting during the week. So I washed my hair thoroughly but I saw that they wouldn't come out. Then at the end of the next week I washed my hair again, and to my astonishment I saw not only those few but many more had come. Then my head became more and more itchy and my scalp started to itch terribly, so that I could not sleep nor keep from scratching my head. I tried many things but nothing helped and instead they made my head worse. This condition of my scalp kept up for a month, and then one day I met a friend who advised me to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I did. In two weeks I was rid completely of this trouble, through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I am never without them, for they are my most highly valued friends." (Signed) Miss Anna Gustafson, 677 Second Ave., New York City, May 17, 1911.

Girl of 12 Cured of Pimples.

"When I was about twelve or thirteen, my face broke out with pimples. They came out in groups and caused great disfigurement. After trying so many remedies without success, I saw the Cuticura Ointment advertised and I sent for a box. In a week I saw a great change in my face, and it rendered a complete cure. Now you can not tell I ever had pimples." (Signed) Miss Mabel Morash, Dover, N. H., Mar. 31, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 19A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 2-p. Book on the skin.

GREY FOX AND VELVET.

The muff and scarf shown here forms one of the prettiest sets seen this season. The soft grey velvet used lends itself admirably to the making of the flower like ornaments, with the shirred centers. The tassels are of heavy silk cord and match the velvet. There is a lining in both muff and scarf of grey satin edged with a pleating.

AWAY GOES CATARRH.

Breathe Soothing, Healing Hyomei—Relief in Five Minutes.

Where there's catarrh there's thousands of germ germs. You can't get rid of catarrh unless you kill these germs.

You can't kill these germs with stomach medicine or sprays or douches because you can't get where they are.

You can kill these germs with HYOMEI, a penetrating antiseptic air that you breathe a few times a day directly over the raw, sore, germ-infested membrane.

For catarrh, asthma, croup, coughs, colds and catarrhal deafness Hyomei is sold on money-back plan by A. A. Clarke. Complete outfit $1.00. Extra bottles of HYOMEI if afterwards needed only 50 cents. Remember, HYOMEI does not contain morphine, cocaine or any drug that could possibly do harm.

Why pay 10 cents for an inferior Bread when you can buy the Best Bread made for 8 cents a loaf? Owing to the wholesale price of bread being cut from 8c to 7c a loaf by the establishment of a new bakery in Connellsville we are asked to reduce the price of our bread, but we are unable to do so and maintain the high standard of quality that we have always made our first thought and which has been the means of our building up a large business in the bakery line.

Rather than reduce the quality or size of our loaves of bread and take advantage of our unsuspecting patrons who have helped us to our success we will maintain our price and divide our profits with our customers.

Beginning December 20th We Will Sell Our Bread at 8 Cents a Loaf Delivered to Your Door Fresh Every Day.

But this bread will not be on sale at any store in Connellsville, excepting our own in the Second National Bank, North Pittsburg street. You can call us up on either telephone and your order will receive prompt attention.

Remember quality counts; you can reduce the cost of your bread two cents a loaf and we will guarantee that it is the same size and quality as your grocer has always charged you 10 cents for.

In ordering your bread from us don't forget that we make the best pies and cakes to be had and we will also carefully fill your order for anything you may wish in the line of fancy baking at any time. Don't forget our telephone numbers.

SCOTSDALE.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Dec. 20.—The East Huntingdon township School Board concluded at their meeting this week not to disturb the special music teacher and the writing teacher. The report gained considerable circulation last week that President William Stoner had suggested that these teachers be dispensed with. The proposition started an uproar among the patrons of the schools, and the opinion was that these branches should be continued in the schools. The board was not unanimous on the matter at all, and in fact it came straight from Directors who opposed the plan, and who sought the patrons to get their sentiment. The meeting was somewhat warm and much of the time it was spent in criticism of the newspapers for publishing the fact that such a proposition was up. The matter was talked over and allowed to drop for the time being at least.

FOR RAY STOUTER.

The only boy in the class of '08 of the Scottdale High School, Ray Stouter, has passed away. The class has sent a floral piece to be placed on the coffin at the funeral which will take place from his late residence on Eagle street, Mt. Pleasant, tomorrow forenoon. Ray Stouter was the one boy in the class which had 16 girls graduate in 1908, and the class elected him its President. The young man had been married about two months, and his sudden death has caused a feeling of gloom among his class mates, with whom he was a favorite.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

The next regular meeting of the Scottdale W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. W. W. Elcher on Tuesday evening, and all members are urged to be present. At that time the arrangements will be made for the observance of the Union week of prayer, among the various churches, which will take place the second week in January, at 2:30 each afternoon.

LOCAL EXPRESS TRAIN.

An extra express train of two cars is coming in each morning on account of the express matter to be delivered on the branch. The express business is very heavy in Scottdale.

PETER SHUPP DEAD.

The body of Peter L. Shupp, a prominent retired farmer, aged 82 years, was found along the road near his home, above Alverton, and between there and the John W. Bennett farm, by Peter Letchler, a Scottdale farmer, who was driving along the road from Mt. Pleasant between 2 and 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Letchler notified neighbors and the body was removed to his late residence. Heart failure was the cause of death. The deceased leaves a wife and the following sons reside in Scottdale: William, Charles, and a half-brother of theirs, Dr. M. L. Shupp of Connellsville.

The funeral in charge of Undertaker William Ferguson will take place from the late residence Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, with burial in the cemetery of Mt. Pleasant.

The showing of the Cokers this year is somewhat of an improvement over last but not as much as could be expected. When 21 games had been played last season the Cokers had won seven and lost 11. This year they had won 19 and lost 11. Last year they were up against better teams and were still playing with a crippled lineup so as a whole the boys are not doing any better than they were a year ago.

It isn't often a defeat can be charged to Billy Kummer's foul shooting. That's why the fans can afford to be tolerant Billy is the one best bet in the league right now and if all the Cokers played as well they would be leading the procession.

The Cokers get a rest from now until Christmas. Christmas night they meet Uniontown here and if standing room isn't at a premium it ought to be. The Cokers always play well against anything that wears a Uniontown uniform and they ought to take a lead in the series next Monday night. Andy Sears and his men will have to improve if they expect to clean up the Darlites next week.

The Cokers have not won a game from Johnston yet. Last season the Jaws were the easiest kind of picking on the floor here. They didn't have Kinkadee and Wolfarth then.

Manager Davis of Washington left Brady to South Side because it meant a better job for "King." Well it's a good thing one of the trainers intends to speed up the pace. Just now they look pretty punk.

December 15 has come and gone and no one thought to recall it was the anniversary of Big John Ahorn's arrival. Big John was an attraction last season that ranked among the seven wonders of the world.

This time last year Andy Sears was leading the league in points. Just now it is keeping him busy staying among the "five best sellers" even with Harry Hough out of the running.

Johnstown is so sure of winning the pennant that they have ordered the hunting already. The Cokers ought to be up among the leaders fighting for the lead but they aren't.

High School figures on bringing the Broadway A. C. of Meyersdale here some evening for a return game. The High School boys believe they can whip that aggregation in a realengo.

Married in Pittsburg.
Corn L. Lynton of Mt. Pleasant and Harry C. Blackburn of Bedford, Pa., W. E. Hazlett of Brownsville and Katherine Billingsley of Buncie, Pa., were granted marriage licenses in Pittsburg yesterday.

Fayette Medical Meeting.
The regular meeting of the Fayette County Medical Society will be held in Connellsville, Tuesday, January 2. Physicians will be present from Brownsville and Uniontown and other nearby towns.

MR. WILLIAM KUMMER SMASHES PRECEDENT

Hands the Old Dame a Jolt on the Jaw by Not Missing a Foul Shot.

EVEN BRYAN'S 16 TO 1 IGNORED

Coltish Coker Cops Chances Consecutively—Bush Beggs' Basketed Bunch of Bingles—Oh, Yes; the Cokers Won the Contest.

Last Night's Scores:
Connellsville 35, Charleroi 23
Johnstown 25, South Side 20.

Standing of the Clubs:
Uniontown 16 3 .342
Johnstown 16 4 .773
Connellsville 11 11 .500
Charleroi 10 11 .455
South Side 9 13 .409
Washington 0 20 .000

Games Tonight:
Charleroi at Johnstown.
Washington at Uniontown.

Mr. William Kummer, the handsome, gingerly forward of the Coker crew, handed Dime President a jolt on the jaw last night when he declined to "blow" a single one of his 16 chances from the foul line. Mr. Kummer has a habit of making amends for an off night. The disastrous engagement at Charleroi Monday evening went adverse to the Cokers' hopes and plans largely because the aforesaid Mr. Kummer only pocketed nine of his 16 shots. To even up the ration, William did some plain and fancy footwork from the foul line last night and treated the handful of fans to a saturnalia of free shots.

The demonstration was the talk of the town last evening. This Mr. Kummer is a grasping, miserly individual when it comes to records. He is almost as tight as the league is concerned a combination in restraint of glory, where it affects other operatives. He is not content to merely hold records, he eagerly seeks to increase his holdings to merge them with others of even greater magnitude. Such was the case last evening.

There has been some pretty punk foul tossing in the league this year. Messrs. Smokey Fogarty, Adams, et al. failing to show proper class. The matter being left largely in the hands of this Kummer lad, he proceeded to give them a few pointers. Some time ago he shot 22 out of 25 fouls, and later 17 out of 18. Just to show there is no frost on the pumpkins at this season of the year he tossed 16 into the hopper last night with the nonchalance of one who never did aught else. Sixteen he dropped—count 'em—sixteen, all in a row. The way he reason it wasn't more because there was none to toss. The feat hasn't been performed in the Central league since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

It might be mentioned, as a side issue, that six other Cokers figured in the contest against Charleroi. The only excuse for more than seven not participating is because the peaches don't shelter them. They were all there, from diminutive Kaplin Kiddo Dark to the angular and somewhat elongated resident of Manayunk who plays rattling good basketball despite the handicap of a carrot-hyde hairstyle adorned to his cranial and the name of Cavanaugh. The final score a mere incident of a most delightful evening, was 25-22, with the Cokers holding up the big end of it. Some facetious fan had dubbed them the Jokers, but his false belief was dispelled.

The engagement started at 9:15 last evening when the blonde-haired Mr. Adams who wields the official pencil and keeps his finger on the stop-watch, tolled the game into session. A Brown, whose black, curly locks are admired by feminine fans tooted his whistle. The game was on. For a time those Cokers seemed destined to annihilate no more. The first point of the game was the initial one of the string to be acquired during the evening by Mr. Kummer. The lead was held but a brief interval for the dignified and stately Mr. Adams tied it.

The Cokers got a lead of 3 to 2 once early in the game, but were passed and were then passed when Mr. Adams rolled a field goal through the net. Kummer broke the monetary foul tossing by landing a field goal and time was asked by the Charobus with the score 4 to 3 in their favor and 11 previous minutes had gone.

When play was resumed the Cokers started doing things. Kummer made another basket. Steve White banked one from midfield while Cavanaugh, Beggs and Peifer also scored. The half ended 21 to 13 in favor of the Cokers. Two field goals by Mr. Peifer, the handsome Charobus of them all, helped that total soar.

In the second half the Cokers started scoring again. Mr. Beggs, known as "Buck" to his friends, contributing three. John F. Doherty, who comes from Worcester, Mass., and is proud of it, broke into the ranks with 9 minutes to go and scored the only other field goal allotted the Cokers. Kaplin Kiddo, who initially was W. J., slipped into the cage during a foul but didn't participate in the scoring. The feature of the game is a field goal by Peifer. How it happened is still a mystery.

The score tipped with the score at 21 but Adams shot his last foul try and boosted it to 22. The lineup: Connellsville (30) Charleroi (22) White, right forward; J. Brown, Kummer, left forward; J. Brown, Cavanaugh, left center; A. Brown, Peifer, right guard; J. Brown, Peifer, left guard; J. Brown, Peifer, substitutes—Dark (1) for White (20), Peifer for Cavanaugh (32), Peifer for Peifer.

Field goals—White 1, Dark 0; Peifer 1, Kummer 2, Heron 0, Cavanaugh 1, Peifer 2, Peifer 1, Doherty 1, J. Brown 0, Beggs 4, Adams 2.

Foul shots—Kummer 18 out of 16, Adams 12 out of 21.
Referee—Davis. Timers—Munroe and Joffe.

Notes
Billy Kummer has shot 11 in a row twice this season, but 16 in the best over Chapeaux off to the Coker star.

Harry Beggs played a brilliant game throughout. He had the hardest kind of luck with his shots and had the double jade been with him Billy Kummer's field goal record might have gone by the board. He made four baskets and missed a dozen or more by the narrowest kind of a margin. He wasn't shooting wild, either.

'Pluggers' Doherty went at it like a warhorse. He was successful carrying the ball that the Charobus substitutes grew peevish.

During the last five minutes of the game the Cokers killed lots of time passing. It was pretty work and met with a reception that will warrant a repetition of the play. After a session of scrambling nothing phases the spectators better than to see the home team spread about the floor, on the go all the time, and passing the ball about from one to another. It was beautifully worked last night culminating in a field goal by Beggs.

Cavanaugh left for dear old Manayunk last night for the holidays. He was let out of the game in time to dress and be out before it was all over to catch No. 10.

Steve White needs plenty of work. The old war horse threatens to take on weight again. Stick to it Steve, remember those fans who are pulling for you all the time.

Degot garnered one basket and guarded so closely that he was not scored upon. Clans to that Reading flyer.

Some of the boys are inclined to be a bit superstitious when criticized.

Play the game and think what happens to a baseball player who fans with the bases full---or muffs the fly that lets in the losing run.

Even with the beard! Now for a squirt after Christmas. A winning streak just at this time would put the hall to the doors. Can't win 'em all but let the other fellows know you have been in the cage.

Referee Davis has good eyesight. He called a double foul early in the first half when none of the spectators could see that a foul had been committed. Heron was going for the ball and slid while Kummer slid after him. Bill tried to explain the play but the referee couldn't see it his way.

The field goals were 10 to 5 in favor of the Cokers. They gained every one of the 10, too.

It isn't hard to understand why the Cokers lose to Charleroi now and then.

Jacky Adams has a team that sticks like fly paper and it requires something, like assault and battery or manslaughter to get within shooting distance of the basket. As spectators Peifer and Heron have porous plasters faded.

Manager Davis of Washington's notes the Herkimer team the day after Christmas. That's when Kane at Weymouth strikes South Side---maybe.

The Central league this year is to be mentioned in the same class as that of last year. There are just 1 teams in the running and not 11. Lightest indication that there will another contender.

From the standpoint of the club management the league is a frost. There are just two teams that can be depended upon to bring out the fans, Uniontown and Johnstown. Last year these two were good drawing cards, but so were South Side and McKeesport. This season the fans do not

Coke Fields of the Pittsburgh District.

Brooks J. Goodin, at the recent meeting of the Foundrymen's Association at Pittsburgh read a paper, of which the following is an abstract on "The Coke Fields of the Pittsburgh District."

The foundry coke made from the Connellsville vein of coal varies greatly in analysis, according to the part of the region from which it comes, although the physical structure has the same general characteristics, being large and hard and presenting a bright silvery appearance when first drawn from the oven.

For descriptive purposes we will divide the Connellsville vein into three parts, namely, the Lattrobe, at the north end of the region and adjacent to the town of that name; the high sulphur district at the southern end of the region; and the old basin between the two.

In the Lattrobe field, which should not be confused with the Greensburg field, which I shall take up later, the plants are located north of the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad and Loyalhanna creek. Practically all of these operations produce high sulphur coke, that is, coke that will analyze over 1 per cent in sulphur, though the structure is very large and tough and the loss from breakage in shipping is comparatively small.

The analysis of the majority of the coals produced in the Lattrobe field show sulphur 1.25 and upward, and ash 19 to 22.50 per cent. Some Lattrobe coke is used successfully by quite a number of eastern foundries.

In the high-sulphur Connellsville region, which is located south of Fairchance, the coke is in almost every case high in sulphur, though as in the Lattrobe fields, it has good physical structure and where sulphur is not a vital element, it can be used to advantage. For instance, a number of cast-iron manufacturers use this coke successfully.

The limits of the Connellsville low sulphur region proper are generally recognized to be the Pennsylvania railroad and Loyalhanna creek on the north, and a line drawn east and west through the town of Fairchance on the south, and the average plant within these limits produces low sulphur coke with excellent physical structure, provided, however, that proper care is taken in the mining of the coal and, if the coke is to be used in a cupola, that the culling of soft, spongy material is done before loading on cars.

John Fulton, one of the greatest authorities on coke, gives the following analysis as to what constitutes standard Connellsville coke:

	Per cent.
Moisture	0.70
Volatiles matter	1.31
Fixed carbon	84.38
Ash	11.64
Sulphur	0.950

This analysis is a very fair average of the bulk of the low sulphur coals with the exception of the sulphur. The percentage of sulphur that Mr. Fulton gives is, I believe, lower than this element runs in the majority of the coals produced, the average being nearer 0.80 to 0.95 per cent.

The area covered by coal in the Greensburg district is approximately three miles wide by 15 miles long, and its limits are County Home on the southwest, branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, to New Alexandria, on the Pennsylvania railroad branch of that name. All the plants operating in this field, with one or two exceptions, prepare the coal that is to be made into coke by washing, for the coal in its natural state is too high in sulphur for the coke made from it to be used successfully. By these operations produce high sulphur coke, that is, coke that will analyze under 1 per cent in sulphur and 12 per cent or under in ash. A number of operators in this field make a specialty of producing foundry coke.

The lower Connellsville region is the latest district to be fully developed and extends approximately from Redbank creek on the northeast, to the Monongahela river on the south and west. This vein is today generally called the "Pittsburgh seam." The coke produced shows a wide divergence as to chemical analysis, some of it analyzing uniformly 0.80 in sulphur or below and some as high as 1.50 to 2 per cent, although almost all of both the low and the high sulphur coke is low in ash, analyzing as a rule below 11 per cent.

The main physical characteristic of the coke is that it has what is known as the cross fracture and it breaks into smaller pieces than the old basin Connellsville coke.

While the coke from this field is smaller than that made from the Connellsville coal in the old region and up to about a year ago it was thought that large bulky coke could not be made from lower Connellsville coal without pulverizing or washing, a test was made at one of the old plants in the old region in small ovens with coal from a lower Connellsville mine, and the coke made was of good structure, equal to old Gaekwar of Baroda Forced to Make Amends for Slight to King George and Queen Mary at Delhi Durbar.

Whether this reversed of form was due to the small 11-foot oven or to the peculiar character of the coal from that particular mine, I do not know, but the fact remains that at the plant large coke was made with the lower Connellsville coal. However, if reasonable care is taken in culling the coke and loading the cars, the results obtained from the use of Klondike or lower Connellsville coke should equal that of the best coals from other regions.

Region of Best Coal in West Virginia.

along the river are now doing what the Greensburg operators have done, that is, installing or have already installed washer plants, and in a majority of cases are successfully reducing the sulphur in the finished product to a point where it will come well within the limits of the standard coke analysis. The ash is low, running from 9.50 to 11 per cent; the structure, large and hard. West of the Youghiogheny river, near Layton, Pa., are located several plants that produce a high grade of coke low in sulphur and ash and of hard, flinty structure.

Outside of what are commonly known as the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville regions, there are several plants in Washington county that make coke of good quality and there is also one in Indiana county. Washington county is practically and Greene county entirely undeveloped as regards coke producing fields, although in all probability in the future it is from these counties that you will have to draw your supply of fuel.

There are such a large number of veins of coal in the northern section of West Virginia from which coke is made, that I will endeavor only to give a brief outline of them. The highest grade coals are made at plants located on the Morantown & Kingwood railroad, in Preston county, and along the line of the Western Maryland. The products of these various plants are, as a rule, under 1 per cent in sulphur; in fact, they very often analyze as low as 0.75. The ash, however, is usually over 12 per cent, often running as high as 13.50 to 14 per cent. The coke is hard and large, but is considerably lighter in weight than Connellsville coke.

Almost all the fuel produced in northern West Virginia is used in the east and the demand for it in some quarters is very good.

Coke is made in three types of ovens: The beehive, Mitchell, longitudinal or Belgium, and by-product.

In the by-product oven, as the name implies, special attention is given to the utilization of the by-products in the gases and the tars themselves, after the by-product is extracted, are available for fuel, as is the coke.

tion of the gases of distillation pass and when being burned heat the coal as it is freshly charged. In the by-product oven, the coal being in a comparatively thin body, is more quickly coked than in the beehive oven.

Since the coal comes from the fuel walls toward the center of the mass, the gases escape here, forming a cleavage plane, so that the coke is a little less than one-half the length of the width of the coking chamber. It is of a dark gray color and usually lacks the lustre of beehive coke, owing to its being watered outside the oven. It should be realized, that while the operators are constantly striving to improve the quality of their product, they are dealing with an uncertain raw material, that the process of manufacture is very crude and that they are compelled to use a very poor class of labor. It should also be remembered that the coke drawer's day commences in the early morning, usually from one to three o'clock, and that it is almost an impossibility for the yard foreman to personally supervise the loading of each and every car.

If the consumers of Connellsville foundry coke will take the trouble to post themselves as to the originating point of the coke or coals that are best suited to their purpose they will occasionally save both themselves and the seller trouble that well could be avoided.

West Virginia Operation.
The Weonah Coal & Coke Company has work well under way on a second opening upon its property at Dott, W. Va., on the Norfolk & Western. The construction of the dipole has been started and a switch installed. Shipments will probably begin in the course of the next two months.

Dock No. 4 Shipments.
Coal shipments through Lock No. 4 on the Monongahela river for the month of November aggregated 15,350,000 bushels, which is 2,300,000 bushels more than was loaded through in October. Shipments for the year to the end of November are behind what they were during the same period in 1910.

By-Product Coke Business.
By-product coking is attracting the attention of American engineers. Alfred Ludd Colby, consulting engineer, 125 Broadway, New York, has just returned home after a three months' study of the latest developments in German by-product coking.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PATSON TERNUM

LOGAN.

His real name was not Logan, but Tah-gah-jute. He was the son of a famous Cayuga chief and was born about 1755 near the Moravian settlement in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania. His father was the white man's loyal friend and adviser, and not only brought up his boy to reverence and love the colonists, but insisted on giving him an English name. So the youngster was called "John Logan," in honor of William Penn's secretary.

Throughout Pennsylvania, and Virginia as well, young Logan grew to be known and respected. He was pointed out as a proof that Indians could become civilized and could be as brothers to the white man. Logan's fame as a trapper, hunter and trader spread throughout the whole region. His influence with his fellow Indians was great. The Mingoes chose him for their chief. Handsome, of splendid bravery, he was universally liked. During the French and Indian war he fought the English colonists he did all in his power to curb the local Indians and to bring about peace. In 1770 he built a home for his family and himself on the banks of the Ohio river and made a good living as a fur trader.

Up in 1774—when he was nearly 50—the life of Logan had not been much more noteworthy than that of a New York policeman. Had he died then, his name would have been forgotten. His biography would have held no more or less historical interest than that of any other commonplace, well-behaved man.

But in 1774 there were disturbances between some Ohio river Indians and the frontier settlers. A few lives were lost and a band of white "hand laborers" decided to overtake the savages by a show of severity. These frontiersmen chose the peaceful Logan as an example. They swooped down upon his cabin, destroyed it and killed nearly all the friendly chief's family and near relatives. Logan himself escaped the massacre. But his lifelong love and trust toward the white man was changed in an instant to murderous hate. He took the warpath and attacked every white settlement within reach. In that one wild campaign he single-handedly killed and scalped no less than 30 persons. He believed—rightly or wrongly—that Capt. Michael Cresap, a frontier celebrity, was leader of the men who murdered his family. And against Cresap he swore terrible vengeance, and longed for this note, tied to a blood-stained war club:

"Capt. Cresap: Why did you kill my people? You killed my kin and took my country. Then I thought I must kill, too. I have been three times to war."

The foe to mankind. Not content with personal vengeance, Logan is said to have stirred up other Indian tribes against the colonists. At any rate, that same autumn, 1,500 braves sprung to arms and ravaged the surrounding country. A thousand Virginia militiamen were sent against them, and a fierce battle was fought near the mouth of the Great Kanawha river. The Indians were so badly defeated that they begged for peace. Lord Dunmore, colonial governor, sent for their chiefs to come to a conference. Logan alone refused to obey his brother-in-law, John Gibson, an Indian to fetch him. In answer to the summons, Logan sent the following historic message, which generations of schoolboys have since declaimed:

"I appeal to any white man to say if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him not meat; if ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not. During the course of the last long and bloody war Logan remained idle in his cabin, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed as they passed and said: 'Logan is the friend of the white man.' I had even thought to have lived with you, but for the injuries of one man. Capt. Cresap, the last spring, in cold blood and unprovoked, murdered all the relations of Logan, not even sparing my women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice in the beams of peace. But do not harbor a thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one!"

Henceforth, Logan became a hopeless drunkard. He gave way to melancholy and to wild fits of temper. In one of these rages, during the summer of 1780, he struck his wife senseless to the ground. Believing he had killed her, he fled. Near Detroit he came upon a party of Indians from his own tribe. He thought they had come to arrest him. So, leaping from his horse, rifle in hand, he swore he would die fighting. He sprang at them before they could explain. In the conflict that followed he was shot dead. In self-defense, by a brave named Tuh-lah-lah—Logan's nephew.

So perished the ex "friend of the white man." A gentle Indian whom injustice had turned into a wild beast.

GOVERNOR COLQUHOUN HAS APPOINTMENT FOR TEXAS GOVERNORSHIP.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20.—Governor C. B. Colquhoun has a hard fight on in his effort to obtain the chief executive of Texas. It has been an unwritten law to give a governor two terms. Colquhoun has not pleased the prohibitionists by his political course, and Judge W. F. Ramsey has announced that he will resign from the supreme court bench to enter the race for the Democratic nomination, which will be equivalent to election.

Heavy Weights Transported.
At Swinton, near Manchester, England, many years ago, during a deluge of rain, lightning suddenly filled a brick building, in which coal was stored, full of pestilential, sulphurous vapor. Suddenly the building, the walls of which measured nearly a foot in thickness, was torn out of the ground, the foundation being nearly two feet deep, and transported in an upright position to a distance of nearly 33 feet. The weight moved was estimated at more than eleven tons.

CAN SECURE LAND

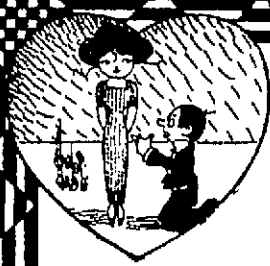

By Condemnation Proceedings to Construct Dams, Court Decides.
MORANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 14.—In affirming the decision of Judge Holt of the Preston county chancery court, the State Supreme Court holds that a public service corporation may condemn property needed in the construction of a dam. The decision of the State Supreme Court, by Judge Williams, has just been entered, affirming the action of the Preston county circuit court.

The property involved in the case was located near the mouth of the Sandy in Preston county and was one of the properties sought to be condemned by the Pittsburgh Hydro-Electric Company for the construction of its proposed big power dam. The right to take was contested by the attorneys for the plaintiff and the case was appealed to the State Supreme Court. Professor Trotter of the University law faculty, prepared the brief in the case for the property owner.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the case will settle a much disputed point. It has been the general opinion of the members of the local bar that a public service corporation intending to construct a dam for power purposes, could avail itself of the right of condemnation to acquire sufficient land for the erection of the structure and to provide for the foundation thereby.

The question was raised during the pendency of the suits of the Mountain Park Land Company, but those were all settled and there was no appeal to the higher court.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Picture of It All.
As far as his anything of the customs of it all, it was like leading a lamb to slaughter.
Villages, lovely, vernal, at a later hour the spot for gay breakfasts and gentle rendezvous, had been designated for the meeting between Dan and Poniatowsky. There in his motor he gave up his effort to get his thoughts clear. Nothing settled down. Even the ground they flew over, the trees with their chequered plumage, blurred, were indistinct, nebulous, as if seen through a diving-bell under the sea. Fear—he didn't know the word. He wasn't afraid—it wasn't that; yet he had a certainty that it was all up with him. He was young—very young—and he hadn't done much with the job. His father would have been ashamed of him. Then all his thoughts went to her. The two men in the motor floated off and he sat there as she had sat yesterday in her marvelously pretty clothes—her little coral shoes.
He had held those bright, little feet in his hands on the "Thames day"; they had just fitted his great hands.
Then Letty Lane, too, sprang away, and the boy's thoughts turned to the man he was to meet. "The affairs are purely formal," he had heard some one say, "an exchange of balls, without serious results."
One of his companions offered Blair a cigar. He refused, the idea sickened him. Here the gentlemen exchanged glances, and one murmured: "Is he afraid?"
The other shrugged.
"Not astonishing—he's a child."
At this Dan glanced up and smiled—what Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, had called his divine young smile. The two secretly were ashamed—she was charming.
As they got out of the motor Dan said:
"I want to ask a question of Prince Poniatowsky—if it is allowed, I'll write it on my card."
After a conference between Prince Poniatowsky's second and Dan's, the slip was handed the prince.
"If you get out all right will you marry Miss Lane? I shall be glad to know."
The Hungarian, who read it under the tree, half smiled. The naïveté of it, the touching youth of it, the crude ask of form—was perfect enough to touch his sense of humor. On the back of Dan's card Poniatowsky scribbled:
"Yes."

It was a haughty inclination, a salute of honor before the fight.
The meeting place was within sight of the little rustic pavilion of Les Trois Agneaux, celebrated for its pre sale and brigades; the advertisements had confronted Dan every here during his wanderings these miserable days.

Dan Blair and the Prince Took Their Positions, the Revolvers Raised Perpendicularly in Their Right Hands.

Under a group of chestnut trees in bright feathery flower Prince Poniatowsky and his second waited, their frock coats buttoned up and their gloves and silk hats in their hands. As Blair and his companions came up the others stood unmoved, grim and formal, according to the code.
Twenty-five paces. They were measured off by the four seconds, and at their signal Dan Blair and the prince took their positions, the revolvers raised perpendicularly in their right hands.
Still more indistinctly the boy saw the sharp-cut picture of it all . . . the diving bell was sinking deeper—deeper—into the sea.
"If I aim," he said to himself, "I shall kill sure—sure."
Blair heard the command: "Fire!" and supposed that after that he fired.

CHAPTER XXX.

Sodawater Fountain Girl.
His next sensation was that a warm stream flowed about his heart.
"My life's blood," he could dimly think, "my heart's blood." Redder than coral, more precious, more costly than any gift his millions could have bought her. "I've spent it for the girl I love." The stream pervaded him, caressed him, folded his limbs about, became an enchanted sea on which he floated, and its color changed from crimson to coral pale, and then to white, and became a cold, cold polar sea—and he lay on it like a frozen man, whose exploration had been in vain, and above him Greenland's icy mountains rose like emerald, on every side.

That is it—"Greenland's icy mountains." How she sang it—down—down. Her voice fell on him like magic balm. He was a little boy in church, sitting small and shy in the pew. The tune was deep and low and heavenly sweet. What a pretty mouth the soda-fountain girl had—like coral; and her eyes like gray seas. The flies buzzed, they droned so loudly that he couldn't hear her. Ah, that was terrible—he couldn't hear her.
Now, it wouldn't do. He must hear the hymn out before he died. Buzz—buzz—drone—drone. Way down he almost heard the soft note. It was ecstasy. Sky—high up—too faint. Ah, Sodawater Fountain Girl—sing—sing—with all your heart so that it may reach his ears and charm him to these reaches toward which he floats.

The expression of anguish on the young fellow's face was so heart-breaking that the doctor, his ear at Dan's lips tried to learn what thing his poor, fading mind longed for.

From the bed's foot, where he stood, Dan's chauffeur came to the gentleman's side, and nodded:
"Right, sir, right, sir—I'll fetch Miss Lane—I'll 'ave 'er 'ere, sir—keep up, Mr. Blair."

He was going barefoot, a boy still following the plow through the mountain fields. Miles and miles he stretched away before him of dark, lonely land. He saw the plow tear up the waving furrows, tossing the earth in sprinkling lines. He heard the shrill note of the phoebe bird, and looking backward saw it darting into the pale sky.
"What a dandy shot!" he thought, "What a bully shot!"
Prince Poniatowsky had made a good shot.

Ah, there was the smell of the bayonet—no—violence that sweetly laid their petals on his lips and face. He was back again in church, lying prone before an altar. If she would only sing, he would rise again—that he knew—and her coral shoes would not dance over his grave.

He opened his eyes wide and looked into Letty Lane's. She bent over him, crying.

"Sing," he whispered.
She didn't understand.
"Sodawater Fountain Girl—if you only knew how the flies buzzed, and how the droning was a living pain. . . ."
She said to Ruggles: "He wants something so heartbreakingly—what can we do?" She saw his hands stir rhythmically on the counterpane—he didn't look to her more than ten years old. . . . What a cruel thing—he was a boy just of age—a boy—Ruggles remembered the nights he had spent before the footlights of the Gaiety, and that the pale woman trembled there weeping was a great thing.

"I guess he wants to hear you sing." She knelt down by him; she trembled so she couldn't stand.
The others, the doctor and Ruggles, the waiters and porters gathered in the hall behind. None of them understood the Gaiety's English words.

"From Greenland's icy mountains, From India's coral strands. . . ."

They were merciful and let him listen in peace. Through the bar in his brain, over the beat of his young ardent heart, above the short breaths the notes reached his falling senses, and lifted him—lifted him. There wasn't a very long distance between his boyhood and his twenty-two years to go and he was not so weak but that he could travel so far.
He sat there by his father again—and heard. The flies buzzed, and he didn't mind them. The smell of the fields came in through the windows and the Sodawater Fountain Girl sang—singing; and as she sang her face grew holy to his eyes—radiant with a beauty he had not dreamed a woman's face could wear. Above the choir rail who stood and sang peacefully, and the church began to fade and fade, and all she stood there in a shaft of light, and her face was like an angel's, and she held her arms out to him as the waters rose to his lips. She bent and lifted him—lifted him high upon the strande. . . .

CHAPTER XXXI.

In Reality.
Dan awoke from his dream, and sat suddenly up in bed in his shirt-sleeves, and stared at the people in his room—a hotel boy and two strangers, not unlike the men in his dream. He brushed his hand across his eyes.
"Sit down, will you? Do you speak English?"
They were for a moment silent, but they did speak English, a bit far more perfectly than did Dan.

"Look here, the doctor with me—must have had a ping-pong on last night—let me put my head in a basin of water, will you?"
He dived into the dressing-room, and came out in another second, his blond head wet, wiping his face and hair furiously with a towel. He hadn't beamed as he did now on those two strange men—for weeks.

"Well," he asked slowly, "I expect you've come to ask me to fight with Prince Poniatowsky—yes?" It's against our principles, you know, in the States—we don't do that way. Personally, I'd throw anything at him

I could lay my hands on, but I don't care to have him let daylight through me, and I don't care to kill your friend. See? I'm an American—yes, I know, I know," he nodded sagely, "but we don't have your kind of fights out on a war. It means business when we go out to shoot."

He threw the towel down on the table, soaking wet as it was, put his hands in the pockets of his evening clothes, which he still wore, for he had not undressed, threw his young blond head back and frankly told his visitors:

"I'm not up on swords. I've seen them in pictures and read about them, but I'll be damned if I've ever had one in my hand."

His expression changed at the quiet response of Poniatowsky's second.

"Gee Whow!" he exclaimed, "he does, does he? Twenty paces—revolvers—why he's a bird—a bird!"
A slight flush rose along Dan's cheeks. "I never liked him, and you don't want to hear what I think of him. But I'll be damned if he isn't a bird."

His eyes caught sight of a blue envelope on the table. He tore the telegram open. It was Ruggles' answer to his question:

"Quite true. Tell you about it. Arrive your hotel tonight noon."

The dispatch informed him that he was really a pauper and also that he had a second for his duel with Poniatowsky. His guests stood formally before the young barbarian.

"Look here," he continued amiably, "I can't meet your Dago friend like this, it's not fair. He hasn't seen me shoot; it isn't for me to say it, but I can't miss. Hold," he interrupted, "he has, too. He was at the Galoreys' at that first shoot. Ah—well, I refuse, tell him so, will you? Tell him I'm an American and a cowboy and that for me a duel at twenty paces with a pistol would mean murder. I like his pluck—it's all right—tell him anything you like. He ought to have chosen swords. He would have had me there."

They retired as formally as they had entered, and took his answer to their client, and after a hasty and careful toilet Dan went out leaving a line for Ruggles, to say that he would be at the hotel to meet him at noon.

B. & O. FOLDER

Exploring the Agricultural Possibilities of the Mountain State.

An attractive folder has been issued by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for the West Virginia Agricultural Exposition. It is entitled "West Virginia, Its Natural Resources, Its Agricultural Possibilities, Its Opportunities and Its Superior Transportation Facilities." All of these various heads are very interestingly dealt with. The folder is especially intended for two classes of people, the investor and the home seeker.

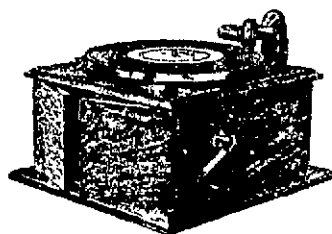

The folder is beautifully illustrated with reproductions of photographs showing in manufacturing, agricultural, forest and orchard scenes and other of equal interest. The information it contains is most entirely based on statistics and therefore is thoroughly reliable. So many advantages of the State are set forth that even to the well informed citizen of West Virginia there are many hitherto unknown to him.

Some of the most interesting data given is West Virginia's second in the production of coal, coke and natural gas, fourth in the value of her petroleum. The value of her clay products is about $4,000,000 a year. Sixty per cent of the area of the State is covered with forests and of this one and one-half million acres being virgin forest. West Virginia has the largest pottery, the largest glass factory, the largest drug and extract establishment and the largest soap manufacturing plant in the United States.

In addition to all these the state has the largest ax factory and the largest independent tin mill in the world.

Next year in the presidential conventions of the two dominant parties, Republican and Democratic, there will be in each from 1,000 to 1,070 delegates.

For Papa and Him

Any man would be tickled all over to find a Safety Razor in his stocking on Christmas morning. You couldn't select anything so useful or appropriate.

THE GILLETTE AUTO-STROP GEM JUNIOR
A fine lot to pick from, ranging in price from $1.00 to $5.00

A Pair of Scissors

It's useful things a mother feels proud of when the children remember her on Christmas. Everybody has a pair of scissors, but how good are they and were they given as a present. We have lots of them in price from .25c up.

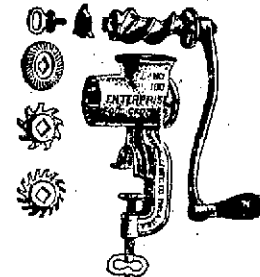

A Fancy Gas Stove

Somebody would be awfully well pleased to see a nice heater in the parlor on Xmas. We have an extra large showing of all kinds of stoves at various prices.

A Person Doesn't Know Just What to Select

When the time begins to shorten and Christmas is but a few days off and no presents selected—a suggestion now and then is usually appreciated. How often have you searched the toy shops and the novelty stores for your gifts, but still you could not find "just what you wanted." A hardware store is not always the first place you'd think of going, but Schell's is an exception. We've prepared especially for this Christmas and filled our tables with such articles as would make the most acceptable gifts as well as articles that are useful the year 'round. We have so many new things that the selection of a Christmas present will be an easy matter here.

A Present for the Kitchen

Any housewife who owns a Gem Food-Cutter will tell you it's the handiest thing in the house. You can make the most delightful food dishes you don't know about now.

The Boys' Dream Wagon and Sled Combined

This is the one thing every boy will include in his Santa Clause letters after he sees one. A dandy wagon in dry weather and a fine sled when there's good coasting. For the way they are constructed these wagon-sleds are cheap. Run from $1.75 to $5.50, with runners at $1.75 per set.

FRESH AIR WITHOUT DRAFTS

Poultrymen Beginning to Appreciate Advantages of Open Front Type of Buildings for Poultry.

Poultrymen are beginning to learn that if they have a house all their own, whose side walls are made of feather, the best non-conductor that she can get, and that if she is allowed to have plenty of oxygen to burn up with the carbohydrates of her food she will very easily keep herself warm in almost any reasonable temperature. The only practical way to give her this very necessary fuel is by giving her plenty of fresh air, but drafts always mean roof, and every poultryman knows what that means. Writes Edna Benton of Essex County, N. Y., in Farm and Home.

I think all are coming more and more to appreciate the open front for fair weather, with means to cover the opening during bad weather. This means that the rest of the house will have to be as tight as possible in order that there may be no dangerous drafts. Experience has also shown that it is well to make the front tight for about two feet above the floor. Everyone has his own peculiar ideas about shape and size. I like best a square house, with the roof as low as convenient in doing the work will permit. Our most satisfactory house, as shown in cut, is built on the continuous house plan, 30x20 feet, with the eaves 4 1/2 feet from the ground in front and no eaves at the back, the roof coming down even with the back of the house, which is 4 1/2 feet high. The roofing material extends to the bottom of the sill. This gives us a double pitched roof, with the maximum of head room and a minimum of air space.

We are satisfied that concrete is the ideal material for a poultry house floor if it is properly constructed. It must not be laid in close contact with the ground unless it is insulated by putting in a thickness of roofing material to keep down the dampness. Tar felt is the most economical and is effective. A foot of small stone is best.

It is important that the partitions be made solid at least as far front as the door, and at least two feet high the balance of the way to prevent drafts.

If possible to have the yards in the rear it is well to have the windows made in one wall, extending from the roof to near the floor, lined at the side next the partition, to be used as a clean-out door for taking litter in and droppings out. It is important that there be some glass in each room, even though small be used. This window should always be in the southeast corner of the room, so that you get the greatest amount of sunlight early in the morning.

The walls of the house should be not over one inch thick and covered with some kind of roofing material to make them tight. Matched lumber will shrink and make a chance for drafts that must be avoided. Roofing boards, planned on one side, put on with the planed side inside and covered over on the outside back and ends with the roofing material are economical and satisfactory. We like tar felt—some color. Whatever is used, the three walls, roof and floor should be tight. The old idea of making the walls double thick with sawdust or building paper between made a fine condensing chamber and a damp place that is unprofitable for poultry. Dry cold is far preferable to damp warmth.

The tendency all along the line seems to be toward larger flocks on account of the labor problem. One man will take care of as many hens in a large flock as two will in small flocks. Thus far we have not gotten beyond pens holding 126. The question of free range will largely influence the size of the pen. We prefer to fence the garden rather than to confine the hens except during a very short breeding season. Even then it is better to confine the ones not in the breeding pen and give the breeders free range. Of course, where one breeds more than one variety this is out of the question.

To sum up, then, make the rooms square, large, light on every side except above two feet from the floor on the south side. Make the floor of concrete and get it up off the ground.

Rat-Proof Poultry Houses.
Poultry houses may be made rat-proof by placing dirt or sand floors on a good concrete foundation, and then can be readily cleaned. In stables wooden floors or on concrete, which costing more than the ordinary floor, will keep out the rats. Galvanized wire netting with a half-inch mesh will prevent rats from gnawing the wood beneath granaries, poultry houses and small buildings, but the whole structure will need to be covered. Cellar windows should be protected in the same manner. Do not place poison where fowls, other birds or domestic animals can get at it.

SURVEYING ROUTES

Up the Cheat Valley to Tap the Chess Timber Tracts.

One of the routes being surveyed by the engineers for the Kendall interests in West Virginia, who have bought the Chess timber tracts in the Cheat valley up Ruble's run, which would provide a line into the heart of the tract of timber from the rear. This route would in no way be affected by the construction of the proposed big dam on Cheat river. The route is up Cheat river. The Kuhn interests are taking up several pieces of property as the options are expiring. The money has been paid over in several instances to the property owners whose lands will be taken by reason of the construction of the dam. The deeds have not been recorded in the clerk's office as yet but have been turned over by the property owners to representatives of the Kuhn interests. The drilling operations along the river still continue. A number of engineers are at work.

Politics and Politicians.
The Lotus Club, a non-partisan political organization of New York City, is to have Governor Harmon of Ohio as its guest of honor next month.

Oshkosh, Wisconsin, has adopted the commission plan of government. Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island and Senator Guggenheim of Colorado have announced their intentions to retire at the end of their present terms.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A pair of sleeves to slip over a good gown with a large apron will allow one to safely get a meal in a best dress.

When putting down the stair carpet, a good deal of the wear can be saved by first tacking down pieces of old comforters or bed quilts, cut not quite the width of the carpet. This saves buying carpet paper or padding made for the purpose.

When putting up curtains, if the windows are close to the floor, put the curtain poles up a foot or more above the window, and when the curtains are hung the space is covered and you have windows with a much greater height in appearance.

If plants are ever frozen or frost-bitten, sprinkle well with cold water and put in a dark place, well covered. They will often be entirely restored in a few hours.

When making soup for immediate use and the fat is removed, use a piece of ice. The fat will quickly harden in it and it can be easily removed. Have your kitchen table covered with zinc and save the time used in scrubbing for other and better things. Slip the hand in a paper bag when polishing the kitchen stove. The hands will be saved and the bag may be burned.

When food has cooked on in any granite dish, put a little washing soda in it. For callouses and corns on the foot use surgeon's plaster, which comes in a small aluminum box and will last a long time. Cut a piece to fit the tender spot and wear one all the time. It keeps the corn soft and it is then easily removed.

Keep old ribbons and pieces of velvet from last season's hats, and you may often find use for them in facings for dresses and even for trimmings if not faded.

Very pretty, correct covers may be made of lingerie waists, by cutting down the neck and trimming the arm hole after removing the sleeve.

Use a quart of water for each pound of meat in making soup.
